Sep 3, 2020 Netflix is now hiring for a new, high-level position for people who want to create 3D shows and films that will be published on. Tuesday, May 10, 2015 OUR NATION'S FUTURE David Brooks wrote recently in the NY Times about the nation's future. He made some compelling points. I'm going to highlight just a few of the best, and hope you see the point I'm making, which is that we have no one other than ourselves, who are we, to save us. The "Blue State" Brooks described his idea of the new "blue state": The new Democratic Party will be so urban and center-left that the presidential candidates will be San Francisco's Nancy Pelosi, Sen. Elizabeth Warren of Massachusetts, and Mayor Michael Bloomberg of New York. "What is the future?" asks a young progressive in the party. "New York!" he replies. It is hard to imagine anything more sane and rational than that for a country that has emerged from the ashes of a great economic crisis. But all of us are living in a minority now. A Republican Party assembled in the 1950s and 1960s by Reagan, Goldwater, and others like them is no longer the majority party. Those politicians have long since left the stage. The modern GOP base is 80 percent white, religious and rural — and immobile. It would nominate a heat-lamp salesman. The Democrats are black, female and urban. The face of the Democratic Party today is a middle-aged, left-leaning Mormon with a Hawaiian shirt. ... The new Democratic Party will be so urban and center-left that the presidential candidates will be San Francisco's Nancy Pelosi, Sen. Elizabeth Warren of Massachusetts, and Mayor Michael Bloomberg of New York. There you have f678ea9f9e
